Jeff,

I went to take the survey - but felt it was inadequate to cover the topic / issues. There really are only two issues: (a) managing the tourist traffic and (b) balancing the parking related to it. Ninety percent of the hours in a year, our transportation issues are moot - the streets are clear. However every mid-day hour for four straight summer months, 'everything' becomes impacted by the tourist traffic (safety, biking, pedestrian, freight, village feel, congestion, etc.)

Instead I'm submitting some notes. I hadn't realized there was only one open house session at this time - too bad. I went to find info on the website but found it lacking -- so I had to watch the videos instead. I also wish the consultants would be a little more transparent about some of their prelim thoughts & ideas. I know it is early - but it would be good for all to start thinking about some of the ideas/impacts (they did release their inputs on marked parking spots. Too bad they did open up on other thoughts.)

I did learn one thing, we have a good quantity of parking -- just in small, fractured, hard to navigate places.
